Heifers were quite anxious about moving up the race into the crush for preg testing & weighing. A few that got a bit stirred up when some electrical persuasion was delivered. Listed above as slightly stirry. They were let out into a laneway and given a good 1/2 hour to themselves, in which time they settled, and were well behaved to approach on foot for photos/videos. Some further handling that doesn't involve any invasive procedures, such as preg testing will encourage some trust & confidence.
