The steers were easily handled in the yards. A few steers stirred up a little during weighing but settled when back in with other steers.

Assessor Comments: These vendor bred Angus steers present in good store condition and show the maturity which should enable them jump ahead when put onto fresh feed. They have come through a very tight cold Mansfield winter but are doing well now. They are by Adameluca, Kelly Angus and Riddellvue bulls. A tail has been removed including any with notable old pink eye scarring. An odd steer displays a little white around the purse but would not be an issue to feedlots. They were drenched with Baymec in mid September and have had 3 x 5 in 1 vaccinations.
