	These cattle walked in quietly and left quietly and are quiet in the holding paddock as can be seen on the video. In the yards and crush, where the setup is not ideal some cows became agitated with the restricted flow, and refused entry to the race and had a strong urge to return to their mates. Once in the crush, most were good, a few took a while to settle on the weigh platform. All were fine once back with the mob.
Handled With	Bikes , Vehicles
Assessor Comments	This mob of medium to large frame Angus females range from 1st to 3rd calvers and were Preg tested 6 to 10 weeks in calf to Alloura bulls in February, meaning they should be 13 to 17 weeks in calf at time of assessment. Despite the dry conditions, the cows are in good strong forward to prime condition and would be a good addition to any herd. The vendor would normally keep all of these cattle but due to conditions this is the second of 2 difficult herd reductions. Averaging 561kg, the weight range is due to the mob being 1st to 3rd calvers. A couple of cows have white on their udder, and one shows some white on the underline, see photos and video.
