Assessor Comments

CaVag Farming are offering a draft of vendor bred Angus heifers that would normally be retained through to the Spring period and then classed as breeding females, but due to the current seasonal conditions they are only able to retain 20% of their weaner heifers. These animals currently present in a forward store condition with a reasonable frame score that will give a prospective buyer a significant amount of compensatory growth if introduced to a warmer climate & greater feed availability. The season in our local area has been somewhat nonexistent and with continuous cold fronts approaching it has brought these animals on the market sooner than intended. Generally, the CaVag female will grow into a medium/large framed animal with a thick muscle pattern & all of the maternal traits you desire in the Angus breed.
