|                        | Steers are a runny in the yards and stubborn to block but will block and take pressure. In short they are very responsive to the behaviour of the handler. If taken quietly they respond in kind if not then they will respond accordingly. Nothing directly aggressive at all. Not to be handled by beginners.                                                                              |                                             |                                            |
