|                        | Cattle have been trained using low stress stock handling processes at weaning. They were sensible when drafted. In the crush a small percentage of the draft presented as slightly stirry in the crush (reluctant to stand) but quietened down when returned to the mob. The majority walked in, stood quietly and walked out.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                            |                         |
