|                    | Steers were very quiet to handle in all sections of the yards and extremely calm on the weighing platform. These have settled down very well since weaning and throughout the education process considering it has only been 1 week since weaning.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                |                                     |

| Assessor Comments  | Buyers here is a lot of Angus steers calved down out of some purchased PTIC Angus heifers purchased from Dunedoo in NSW last year. They look to have plenty of breeding in them visually and considering they are out of 1st calf heifers have had an excellent start. These are bred in lighter country but don't look to have had any setbacks since birth and I would expect these to perform very well on some heavier country especially now they have been through the weaning process. Most have plenty of shape, bone and muscling evident in the photos/video. All steers look to be very clear in the eye and no nasal discharges evident that can be prevalent in the winter months after weaning so consider to be in very good health. These will suit to background to heavier weights for feedlot entry for either domestic or export entry specs or to take through for all grass fed slaughter orders. Did notice two steers with a very small amount of white on the cod. Four lots in sale from this property. |                |                                     |
