These heifers were good to handle through the yards, some of the heifers became nervous when under heavy pressure in the yard but would settle quickly when the pressure was released, these heifers stood up well in the crush while being weighed with a handful becoming anxious and slightly stirry before being released.

Assessor Comments

Here is a very good line of vendor bred future breeders, these heifers have picked up well after the recent rains and availability of good quality feed and appear to be doing very well. The heifers are an ideal article for anyone looking to purchase VGQ heifers to join to the bull of your choice. An article that will grow into money for the purchaser, they show plenty of weight for age, frame, good length and bone but still remain very soft with a great skin type. They would grow into thumping big cows if given the chance. This line was the vendors keeper heifers but due to unforeseen circumstances they have to go, an opportunity to buy the lead of a mob of well bred heifers.
