|                       | Heifers were assessed straight after being mustered and drafted, some became agitated when singled out or when pressure was applied in the force yards and crush, some hesitant to go into these force yards as they had been preg tested the day before. Settled when released into the larger yards and when given room to move freely. No malice was shown throughout the assessment - typical behaviour for the breed.                                                                                                                                    |                                                                        |                         |      |                                     |      |              |      |
